THE YEAR'S EARNINGS.

In January last the railway companies of the United States paid about $48,900,000 in interest, an increase of over 50 per cent. in interest payments made in January, 1888. For the year 1889 the excess in interest payments over that of 1888 amounted to $27,980,961. The dividend showing for the past year is not so favorable, the Railway Examiner estimating the decrease at $4,250,310, or about 4 per cent. The first dividends of the year made a good showing, but the subsequent ones showed a bad falling off.

The interest and dividend payments which will be made this month will be far in excess of those of January, 1889. Many roads in which dividends were passed last year have a good fund to draw upon. Security holders will receive $70,000,000 to $75,000,000 on their investments this month.

At this moment it appears to be certain that the great fair of 1892 will be held in 1896. The shortness of time is a valid objection, and the intense rivalry of cities for the location is a suggestive reason. The politicians discover also that the fair will not work well in the year of a Presidential campaign. The Democrats discover that the Republicans will find many thousands of fat in the fund, and the Republicans are afraid the Democrats will influence the votes of the thousands of working people who will be employed around the buildings and grounds. Therefore both parties agree that Columbus ought not to have discovered America until 1845, and will proceed to jointly rectify his prematurity.

The dispatch from St. Petersburg that the influenza epidemic has entirely disappeared from that city and Moscow will no doubt have a favorable effect in this country, as it will give assurance to timid folk that the disease is not as bad as represented. Unquestionably much of the ill-health noticeable at present is due to an over-estimate of the gravity of the complaint. A person who simply has a bad cold does not lose spirit, but if he gets the idea that it is "the grippe" that troubles him he immediately becomes despondent, and consequently much sicker than if he were not worried by the new-fangled name.

A baby usually commands a degree of attention entirely disproportionate to its size, but the young King of Spain, who by the way was a General before he was out of long clothes, seems to come in for a larger share of notice than most babies. Just now his health is in a very precarious condition, and all the crowded hordes of Europe are in a flutter, for they cannot foresee what consequences may flow from the going out of his little life. If all the reports regarding the society of kings and emperors over this little baby be taken into consideration, it is easy to concede the truth of the saying, "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

One of the best points in Mr. Blaine's rejoinder to Mr. Gladstone's free-trade argument is that in which he made clear that the one industry which the United States has denied protection—namely, shipbuilding—has languished, while the same industry, which has been the only one Great Britain protects, has made phenomenal advances in that country. Any one unable to see the force of this illustration must be particularly dull. It seems to demonstrate conclusively that protection is the only reliable method of stimulating an industry.

A pair of fond parents in Louisiana recently administered to three children large doses of strychnine under the impression that it was quinine. It seems almost incredible that so dangerous a poison as strychnine should be kept about a house without a proper warning label, but the frequent occurrence of such tragedies as the above show that the careless habit prevails. Perhaps the only cure for such carelessness should be to mete out a proper punishment to the authors of it.

Chauncey Depew at the annual dinner of the Holland Society made one of his witty and facetious speeches, in which he paid a deserved tribute to the character of the Dutch. No people in the world has a more brilliant history. As workers the Dutch have never been excelled. Devotion to learning is one of their leading traits, and those who have read the histories of Motley know how much the world is indebted to them for their vigorous defense of human rights and liberty.

Government officials in Cuba have robbed the Treasury of about $700,000. They have had an example before them for generations, during which the Government has robbed the Cubans. There is not always honor among thieves. Probably some new exaction will be devised to wring the amount of the delinquency out of the "ever faithful" one.

The order of the Reading Railroad Company that all of its employees shall be clean-shaven is ridiculous. It is especially hard on brakemen, conductors, etc., who are exposed to the weather, beside being an unwarrantable interference with personal rights. The soldier is permitted to wear his beard, provided he keeps it neat.

The English yacht builders, after all their protestations, have come to the center-board at last. The latest design of Watson's, now building at Southampton, will be provided with the feature that Americans claim played no small part in the successes of the Puritan and the Volunteer.

OUR ARID LANDS.

Hermann fears the Government Will Not Take Hold of the Scheme to Reclaim the Desert.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Representative Hermann, in an interview today, said: "I am afraid that all this investigation and agitation by the special committee of the Senate during the past Summer will result in nothing material in the way of irrigating our arid plains."

"I can only hope to see an appropriation made, for the present at least, providing for a general survey of all lands, which, it is believed, should be irrigated at the expense of the Government. There is too much opposition from the Eastern and Central States to warrant us in hoping that we can get an appropriation through Congress to prepare irrigating basins or bore artesian wells, although any fair-minded man will acknowledge that this should be done."

"The Government has a right to irrigate its own lands. We have very little agricultural land which the poor man can settle upon, and if we should irrigate the arid plains there would be a new life opened to the poor man who wanted to go West and take up a home at the expense of the Government."

"I am utterly opposed to the proposition to donate lands to States with the understanding that they shall be made arable by irrigation. Whenever the Federal Government gives its lands to the States to be irrigated it turns all of such lands into the hands of monopolists. The States have not the money to irrigate those lands and they would give them to irrigating companies who would be as grasping and fraudulent as such corporations have been in the past."

"I would prefer to depend upon the changing elements or climate for irrigation than on irrigation companies. I am thoroughly disheartened and believe that the whole project for the Government to assist in irrigating our arid plains will fail through. One thing is certain, we cannot get money for irrigation purposes until we overcome the prejudice which abounds east of the Mississippi river."

The Canadian Pacific's net results from the operations of its lines in 1889 amount to $8,000,000. With this sum it will not only meet its fixed charges but have a balance of $2,250,000 for dividend paying purposes. In 1888 the surplus was $328,000, so that the total now available for dividends is $2,578,000. A dividend of 2½ per cent. will be paid in February.

Gladstone tells his Hawaiian tenant that he objects to naturalization of the land because the State could not be a good and capable landlord. Had he added that the yeoman who farms his own few acres, and the town resident, who owns his home, make the best citizens, his argument would have been more complete.

Russia is taking decided steps toward the expansion of the Germans within her boundaries. Germany cannot legally complain, as she has lately been doing the same to foreigners in her territory. When a nation becomes practically an armed camp, there is no place for neutrals or possible hostiles.

Wyoming asks admission to the Union, and pleads her fine forests as part of her claim to self-supporting resources. Her forests are fine, but the fires are wiping them out so rapidly that the claim will soon be as false.

FORMING A CORNER IN CONGRESS.

The Eureka Sentinel, of last Saturday, contains the following:

At the beginning of the present session of Congress it was announced from Washington by telegraph that the Senators and members of the House from the extreme West had resolved themselves into a combination whereby they agreed to stand as a unit on all matters of important legislation. The combination was given the name of the "Northwestern Association," and Senator Stewart of this State was made President. The object of the association was doubtless to advance Western interests, to itself the end sought is laudable enough, but the means employed to attain it are of questionable propriety. Big appropriations among other things are to be secured, if possible. The scheme is more practical than patriotic. This being a representative Government the Representatives should be left free and as a law unto themselves, answerable only to his constituents for the good or bad discharge of the duties devolving upon him. To tie him up in a combination which is intended to vote as one man is to deprive him very largely of his independent character as a representative of the people. Such a thing may work in the West among small men in small parties, but it is disgraceful when applied to law makers. To "raw" at very mild, it is a lowering of the dignity which is presumed to attach to the greatest law-making body in the world. The logical deduction shows plainly the "Northwestern Association" to be a mere device to "pluck the Government."

In this country the people are supposed to be the Government. Hence it follows that the people's representatives combine to pluck the people. The whole affair is unworthy of any man or set of men with brains enough to find the way to Washington. If the West may combine, why not the East also? And if the Congress of the United States is to be run by rings, and corners, and combines, and trusts, that would seem to place a period to free representative government in this country. Is there a man in the "Northwestern Association" who knows anything about the duties of our Government? We do not know one, and doubt if there is one.

Influenza in New York in 1889.

The Josiah Quincy Jr., of that era, in the diary of a journey with Judge Story from Boston to Washington, wrote: "When we reached New York on the 30th of January, 1889, we were met by a solemn announcement. New York had succumbed to the influenza. Everybody had been, was or was going to be, sick with it. The simple faith in medicine, in those days, was quite touching, and the question, 'What shall I do?' as sensible people would say now, was substituted by the inquiry, 'What shall I take?' The answers came thick and fast. There are some of them—Take licenced and licenced; also barley water; also, a mixture of sugar and vinegar; also, wine of antimony, and of all things, practice no short-sighted economy in the matter of blue pills."

The Weir-Murphy Fight.

Special to the Journal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—The fight to a finish between the "Spider" and the "Weir," featherweight champion of the world, and Billy Murphy, featherweight champion of Australia, for a purse of $2,250, took place at the California Athletic Club tonight.

Before the fight, President Folds announced that John L. Sullivan had agreed with an accredited representative of the club on a purse for which he would meet Peter Jackson in the last fight of his life. The amount was $15,000, and Jackson had accepted the terms. By a unanimous vote the club announced its approval of a proposition to empower the Directors to make the match.

Jimmy Foley, of Boston, and Frank Glover, of Chicago, were Weir's seconds. Paddy Gorman and Martin Murphy were Murphy's seconds. Hiram Cook was referee. Weir's weight was announced as 124½, Murphy's as 118½.

The men started at a lively pace, Murphy's body blows being met by Weir's rapid upper-cutting. The first round ended with Weir slipping to the floor from Murphy's rally.

In the second round, Murphy reached Weir's nose, and was caught by upper cuts, causing his nose to bleed. From the third to the eighth round Murphy swung his right in effectively, in return receiving, at close quarters, Weir's left fall in the face with astonishing rapidity.

In the fifth round the men fought each other from corner to corner, Murphy avoiding Weir's rushes whenever possible. Weir's antics and clever fighting created great amusement.

In the sixth round Weir landed a second right-hand on the Australian's ribs, and after some by play received a staggerer on the right jaw that nearly felled him.

In the seventh round, Weir got a light tip on the nose that brought blood. Murphy landed heavily on Weir's nose.

In the eighth round Weir was brought to the floor by a right-hand on the neck. As he slipped Murphy was nearly knocked out by a right-hand while fighting furiously.

In the ninth round Weir again fell while attempting Murphy lightly on the breast. Murphy tried to pin the "Spider" in a corner, but the latter evaded him each time, and Murphy found go spinning around the ring. He appeared red and uncomfortable, while the "Spider" was still cool and confident.

From the ninth to the twelfth round little effective fighting was done. In the twelfth round the "Spider" swung his right with telling effect on Murphy's left ear and jaw. Again planting his right and left in the Australian's eye as he came on freely, Murphy's left eye was bleeding freely. He fought desperately, and drove Weir through the ropes and around the ring.

The thirteenth round was one of the greatest surprises ever seen in the club rooms. Murphy came up almost hopeless, but fought fiercely. He landed a right-hand on Weir's head that staggered him, and in a minute was upon him, swinging and upper-cutting with his right and sending the "Spider" down eight times in rapid succession. Twice the latter was nearly counted out, but rose with the last second and with courage born of desperation planted his right feebly on Murphy's ear, only to go down again.

In the fourteenth round both men, though apparently too groggy to stand, came promptly up for the last round. It was a short one. Murphy again landed, Weir countered and in a second received another blow that sent him down and decided his fate. He writhed in agony for ten seconds and when he rose at all of times he was holding his right wrist painfully with his left, claiming to have broken it. Murphy, though showing more signs of punishment than Weir, and at one time nearly knocked out, freshened wonderfully in the last round and jumped lightly from the ring at the end of the fight.

The Curse of Humanity.

Special to the Journal.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—An unfortunate woman, who was known under various aliases, died suddenly Saturday night in her untidy apartment, on the first floor of No. 312 West Forty-ninth street. She lived alone with an old servant named Bridget Kelly. She had been treated for hemorrhage by a physician, but died before he could be summoned. She was called Mrs. Kennedy, alias Hamilton, alias Freigh, alias Montgomery, alias Weston. The latter name was derived from a Jersey City fruit dealer, who was intimate with her until her death. The woman was unusually fine looking and her features showed even in death the marks of great beauty. She came of a respectable family, as the letters that were found indicated. She was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., where a brother still resides. Her great beauty led to her downfall, and she drifted to Albany City, where, according to a letter written to her from a lawyer there, she was known in certain classes as the "Belle of Albany City." Many years ago she came to this city. A year ago her father died at his home in Pittsburgh and in his will left her a little money. Her brother, however, contested it. She leaves a sister also, who resides at Albany City.

House Bill.

Special to the Journal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Among the bills introduced in the House today were the following:

By Struble—For the admission of Wyoming and Idaho into the Union.

By Cummings, of New York—Joint resolution for the creation of a statue to the memory of the late Samuel J. Tilden, as follows: "Resolved, That there be appropriated from the treasury the sum of $50,000 to erect a bronze statue to the late Samuel J. Tilden, to be placed in the center rotunda of the capitol; that on the tablet at the front of the base of said statue shall be conspicuously engraved these words: 'Samuel J. Tilden, nineteenth President of the United States—elected, but not seated' [Applause on the Democratic side]; that on the right of the square base shall be engraved the date of the birth, election and death of such President, and that on the opposite side shall be engraved an eagle with a snake in his talons, and under them these words: 'For the right,' and that the President of the United States, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and the Speaker of the House be authorized to superintend the expenditure of the money, and a copy of these resolutions, with the names and titles of said dignitaries, be engraved on the rear of said base."

Sweeney, of Iowa, inquired whether the gentleman expected the inscriptions to be in cipher. [Applause on the Republican side.]

By Washington—Making Andrew Jackson's birthday a national holiday.

After discussing in Committee of the Whole the bill to provide for townsite entry of lands in Oklahoma, the House adjourned.

Desperate Fencers.

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 13.—The sentencing of Calvin Graves, who shot the game warden at Fletcher Brook, to life imprisonment in the Maine State Prison has no ended the unlawful work of his gang of deer-killers, and many complaints have been received from Franklin, the headquarters of the gang. A week ago yesterday the gang chased a deer with dogs into the dooryard of a farmer and killed it. Detective W. McNamara, of Boston, who has distinguished himself in the Maine forests, secured warrants for six of the worst of the gang. Watson and Manson, the ring-leaders, were surrounded in their houses by a posse of officers, were arrested, and in Ellsworth yesterday were given the full penalty of the law. They are sons of Gideon Joy, an eccentric resident of the locality, who is said to be worth over $100,000, and yet lives in a log hut in the woods. The men in the gang have burned houses and poisoned cows to revenge themselves upon every one who has dared oppose them.

A Married Woman Elopes With a Boy.

Special to the Journal.

CARBONDALE, Pa., Jan. 13.—Mrs. Onafrio, the wife of a wealthy contractor on the Ontario, Carbondale & Senanton railroad, has eloped with Frank Conklin, a lad of twenty. Mrs. Onafrio is about ten years his senior. The runaway couple came from Forest City to Carbondale, where they registered as man and wife at a leading hotel. Mr. Onafrio followed in the morning, but he had learned of his wife's whereabouts too late, and she was on her way to New York City, where it is supposed the couple now are. Conklin is a handsome young fellow, while the woman is far from pretty. He is a first cousin of Onafrio, and has worked for and boarded with him for about four months, coming from Patterson, N. J., to accept a lucrative position at Mr. Onafrio's solicitation.

The "Monarch's" Work.

Special to the Journal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—Acting under telegraphic instructions from the Chief of the United States Life Saving Service at Washington, Major T. J. Blake, Superintendent of the service on the Pacific Coast, has ordered an official investigation of the conduct of the crew of the Golden Gate Life Saving Station on the night that Antonio Nicholas, a fisherman, was rescued at Point Bonito by a tug sent out by the Examiner. The investigation was to have commenced this morning at Major Blake's office, but no witnesses appeared to testify in the matter, and the hearing was adjourned until to-morrow.

Iowa House.

DES MOINES, Jan. 13.—The Conference Committee of the two parties made a report to the caucuses, giving the Republicans the temporary Speaker and the Democrats the Chief Clerk. The report was not adopted by the Democratic caucuses. Caucuses are again in session, trying to reach an agreement before the time for temporary organization at 2 this afternoon. The attempted organization of the House today fully demonstrated that in the lower body both parties were a tie on the nomination for the temporary Speaker. The vote stood fifty for each. Indications are that the House will not be organized today.

A Missing Carpenter.

ATOKINSON, Kas., Jan. 13.—Henry Schook, a carpenter, while temporarily insane, tore his clothes from his body, left his room and disappeared in the storm last night. Search for him has proved futile. It is supposed that he perished in the storm and that his body lies buried in a snow drift. A large dose of medicine caused his derangement.

Jealous of the Freedom of Their City.

GLASGOW, Jan. 13.—The majority of the magistrates are favorable to Lord Rosebery, having the dignity of a Burgess of Glasgow conferred upon him. The minority of the magistrates will only agree to the proposal provided the majority compromise the matter by agreeing to give the Marquis of Salisbury also the freedom of the city.

A Hungarian Jack-the-Ripper.

PESTH, Jan. 13.—The body of a prostitute has been found at Groenew, near Pesthburg, with the throat cut and otherwise mutilated. The crime resembles those committed recently in Whitechapel.

Terrible Tornado.

Special to the Journal.

CAIRO, Ill., Jan. 13.—A tornado last night struck the east side of the city of Clinton, Ky., demolishing fifty-five houses and killing eleven people and wounding fifty-three.

The killed, so far as could be ascertained, are: J. A. Rhodes and two children, Mrs. William Bone, Barnet Bone, Walter Nance, John W. Gaddies, an infant of J. C. Hodges, and another not yet identified.

Messrs reports come from Moscow, Ky., from where the first traces of the path of the tornado are seen. There the Methodist Church and school-house are in ruins. The storm passed north to Moscow, Ky., thence northwest to Clinton and Wickliffe. The path of the storm is about a quarter of a mile wide, and it left a track of fallen timber through a section of forest it passed before reaching Clinton.

The first house struck in Clinton was a section-house of the Illinois Central Railroad, occupied by John Rhodes and family. The house was torn to splinters, and Rhodes and two children were instantly killed.

The house of John Gaddies was blown down, and afterwards Gaddies was found under the debris with an infant in his arms. Gaddies was dead but the child was not hurt. The house of Robert Johnson, which was on the brow of a hill, seemed to divide in half, cutting in two just below the second floor and letting the upper portion fall into its place. Johnson was in the lower room and the upper part fell on him and carried him to the earth. He was rescued, badly injured. His son Robert was up stairs and was dangerously hurt by falling timbers. Although suffering intense agony he begged his rescuers to let him alone and help some one who could live. His brother David is also badly hurt.

The storm struck the town without the slightest warning. Many knew nothing of it until the roofs of their houses were falling about their heads. Before the storm the evening was warm, and a heavy rain had prevailed all day, but after the storm it suddenly turned cold and caused a great deal of suffering.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

TOLEDO, Jan. 13.—During the heavy gale last night a freight car was blown from a siding at Ouster Station, on the Cincinnati, Easton &amp; Dayton railroad, 35 miles south of Toledo, upon the main track, and then driven three miles north, where it collided with the south-bound passenger train leaving here at midnight. The engine, one baggage, and mail car of the train were wrecked, and both engineer and fireman injured, but not fatally. The gale injured houses and did minor damage.

PASSENGER TRAIN DERAILED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—A special from Siskiyou, Cal., says yesterday's passenger train from San Francisco, bound north to Portland, was wrecked at Wright's Spar, three miles north of here. The late fall of snow was so deep the engine ran off the track and the mail, express, baggage and two Pullman cars were derailed. Only the first three were injured. The express was badly smashed, but no one was hurt.

SNOW IN THE CITY BELT.

REDDING, Cal., Jan. 13.—It snowed here all day yesterday, and the snow measured between ten and eleven inches when it ceased. It is the heaviest snow in fifteen years, and travel from the north is impeded.

WINTER WINNEMUCCA.

WINNEMUCCA, Nev., Jan. 13.—The deepest snow ever seen here fell yesterday and last night. The Signal Office gauge shows sixteen inches. It is feared the storm will kill large numbers of stock on the ranges.

The Sea Gives Up Its Dead.

Special to the Journal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—The bodies of the two mates of the ship Durham, who were drowned three weeks ago in the bay, near Mission rock, were recovered this morning. That of Christopher Stevens, First Mate, was found in the bay near Harbor View, while that of William B. Higginson, Second Officer, was discovered at the seawall. Both bodies were rightfully decomposed. They were identified by means of papers found in their pockets.

RENO CORRESPONDENCE.

The Writer's Views on the State Board of Trade.

A Reno correspondent of the Virginia Chronicle thus relieves himself in that journal.

There are many substantial improvements being made in this city; quite a number of fine buildings are in course of construction and the sewage system perfected. Great enthusiasm is manifested in the recently organized State Board of Trade, which is the largest in the United States and is far superior—physically—to anything of the kind ever organized in any country. It is composed of representative men from all parts of Nevada, and every voter in and about Reno—from banker to street sweeper—irrespective of race, color or previous political proclivities, is a charter member. Mr. Francis G. Newlands, the California lion of Nevada, is President, assisted by a large number of Vice Presidents. Great results are expected from this organization by its promoters, to who it will doubtless prove remunerative.

The officers did wrong, in their haste, to honor every man, thinking perhaps he would retain the compliment by some act of kindness in the future. Among the charter members named are several who long ago severed their connection with all earthly affairs and have emigrated to the Land of Rest. When these make application to St. Peter for admission to a celestial home, knowing that they are still interested in improvements in this sphere, he will probably treat them as aliens, which will be very inconvenient to the applicants, to say the least.

The State Board of Trade will doubtless do great good, and in time may prove what money and brains, or rather money, for money is brains, will effect. Had this organization been perfect—long ago it would have been instrumental in establishing a military post at this place.

There is not a better location in the United States for a military post than Reno. The climate is mild except in the Winter, and the temperate and moral status of society here will be a great civilizing influence over Uncle Sam's soldiers, besides—there is not a hostile Indian within 400 miles. There is time yet, however, to accomplish much, and with the right men in the right place there are great possibilities in the future for Reno—now the largest city on the Central Pacific railroad between Wadsworth and Boon, and in time will be the largest between Ogden, Utah, and Sacramento, California.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. Feb. 21-awly.

Miner Blown Up.

James Ketton, a miner, met with a terrible accident in the Alta mine, God Hill, yesterday afternoon. He was stooping over a small drift hole in the face of a drift trying to ascertain why the blast had not exploded, when the charge suddenly went off. Both of Ketton's eyes were blown out, his right arm torn off and his head and body otherwise terribly lacerated by flying fragments of rock. He was 30 years of age and unmarried. The Chronicle says the chances of his recovery are extremely doubtful.

AFTER BLACK TAIL DEER.

EXHILARATING SPORT IN THE MOUNTAINS OF WYOMING.

Beautiful Creatures Brought to Earth by London Messengers—Tenderfoot from the East Meets with Remarkable Success in the Hunt.

On our arrival at the Crystal Spring ranch my friend F. of New York and myself, learned that deer were plentiful in the mountains to the east of the ranch, consequently we determined to try our luck on the following day, the Messrs. T., the proprietors of the ranch, agreeing to accompany us.

"The searching eye of heaven" was just firing the proud tops of the eastern peaks as we set out, each mounted on a stout little broncho and armed with a good rifle and a large hunting knife. We were also provided with lunches, in order to enable us to be absent the whole day if necessary.

THE BEAUTIFUL ANTELOPE.

On reaching the summit of a rather steep hill we saw a group of antelope quietly grazing in the bottom of a broad valley about a quarter of a mile from us. F. and myself dismounted and attempted to get nearer to them, but they soon spied us and made off with such speed that "they seemed in running to devour the way." We sent a couple of flying shots after them, but to no effect. These animals are very shy, and as they are usually found in the open country, it is very difficult to get within range of them. Their curiosity, however, is easily excited, as they are as inquisitive as Mother Eve, and this fact is often taken advantage of by hunters, who, by lying flat on the ground and gently waving a handkerchief or some other conspicuous object, can often entice them within shooting range. They are beautifully formed—tall, about the size of a sucking calf, their coats being of a fawn color and their tails white and bushy. Their heads are shaped, and in the case of the bucks are surmounted by a pair of slender pointed horns, hence their name of the prong-horned antelope. Their eyes are of exquisite beauty, being large, dark and languid looking, and hence have often served as images to poets.

We again mounted and rode on for several miles, when the nature of the country altered as we approached the highest part of the range, being composed of high hills covered with pine trees and separated by deep "draws" with precipitous banks. In some places they looked almost perpendicular, and it seemed almost an impossibility to descend them, but the sure-footed little bronchos, now cautiously picking out the spots affording the best footing, again putting their feet together and allowing themselves to slide, would carry us safely to the bottom. Occasionally, on reaching a particularly bad place, we would dismount and lead our animals, and on one occasion, we were surprised to see one of our companions give his horse a shove and allow him to partly roll and partly slide down the bank, while he himself followed leisurely on foot, the broncho recovering his feet and patiently waiting for his rider at the foot of the hill.

We now determined to divide our party having first agreed upon a place of meeting, R. and myself taking one "draw" and our companions riding some distance further "to work" another.

SPOTTING A PRETTY PICTURE.

After drawing lots for first shot, the choice falling to R., we rode slowly along the side of the draw, keeping our eyes wide open for deer. We rode on for several miles when, to our delight, a band of seven bucks appeared on the divide opposite to us, who, on catching sight of us, suddenly stopped, threw up their antlers and sniffed the air, forming a picture that would cause any hunter's heart to beat more rapidly. We hastily dismounted and opened fire upon them but seemingly to no effect, as they disappeared into the next draw. The failure of my shot was probably due to "buck fever," but this could not have been the case with R., who had killed numbers of them before. Leaving our horses, we followed them on foot as fast as the nature of the ground would permit, and on reaching the top of the divide we noticed that the next draw was walled in on the opposite side by a steep bluff, rendering escape in this direction impossible, and the deer had halted in the bottom, uncertain which way to run. We again fired and evidently had both aimed at the same animal as the largest one of the group fell to the ground. The echo of our shots from the opposite bluff seemed still further to confuse the rest, and they hesitated long enough to enable us to get several more shots at them and three more bowed their proud antlers beneath the dust. The other three then started up the draw with lightning speed and were soon beyond range. We were highly elated, however, at killing four out of the seven; the thrill of satisfaction and delight which passes through a man's breast as he sees one of these noble creatures fall beneath his well directed shot needs to be felt to be fully appreciated.

We had each killed two, although we could not determine with certainty who had shot the large buck, as there were three shots in him, any of which would have proved fatal. He was indeed a beauty, as large as a yearling stag, sleek and fat, with a magnificent head, finely shaped and adorned with a pair of large, spreading antlers which we were very careful to preserve with a view to having it mounted on our return to civilization, and hung at the head of the ancestral hall amid other trophies of the chase. We now whipped out our knives and proceeded to tie the deer's hind legs and to cut off the antlers in suitable portions, viz.: the hams, which we tied behind our saddles. The rest we were obliged to leave upon the ground as we were a long distance from the ranch and could not carry a very large load.—W. Lynn Wilson in Detroit Free Press.

A Johnstown Dog.

A gang of men were at work near Johnstown removing debris. Soon they came upon a pile of logs in the shape of a cone at least a dozen feet high. The logs were in such a symmetrical shape that it looked as though they were put together by human hands. The cone was hollow, and as the men proceeded with their work they detected a small which suggested that there was a dead animal close at hand. Log after log was removed, when to their amazement, they beheld a mastiff dog. The animal wagged his tail and whined when he saw the men, and seemed gladdened at the prospect of being liberated from his prison. In another portion of the cone-shaped coil was the carcass of a cow. By some freak of the rushing wind the dog and cow were caught in this per he cow being crushed in the jam of logs. The canine was sleek and fat when liberated, and looked none the worse for his two months' imprisonment.—Exchange.

RENO LIBRARY.

Report of the Librarian for the Month Ending December 31st.

Number of books in the library, 590; number of names on the borrowing list, 215; number of books out at this date 90; average daily attendance in reading room, 15; number of books purchased during the month, 19; number of books donated during the month, 10.

The above report will show the people of Reno, that the library is doing considerable good in as large a way as their means will permit. The trustees have been trying hard to increase the number of books, but unless the citizens of Reno will help, the progress will be slow. Every one knows the advantages to be derived from a public library and reading room and should do all in their power to help it along, either by public subscription or donations of suitable books and reading matter. Those on the borrowing list constitute all fifty books. The following daily papers and periodicals are to be found in the reading room. The San Francisco Chronicle and Examiner, the Virginia Chronicle and Enterprise, Oakland Tribune, Sierra Valley Leader, Greenville Bulletin, Harper's Weekly, Texas Siftings, the Youth's Companion, Frank L. Shaw's Illustrated paper, the Independent Pacific States, The Forum, the Century, The Overland Monthly, Outing, Harper's Monthly Magazine, North American Review. Every one will have a chance to help this good cause, and also spend a pleasant evening. On Friday next, January 17th, "The Princess" will be presented at McKissick's Opera house, for the benefit of the library, under the able management of Miss K. Turner, whose ability in such matters is well known. It is to be hoped there will be a big house, for the library is in great need of more books.

Potatoes From the East.

The shortage of potatoes in this city, says the San Francisco Chronicle, of Sunday, is likely to be soon realized. A special train of twenty carsloads is en route from Chicago, having left that city over the Santa Fe yesterday. The Southern Pacific Company will in the next few days move about 100 carloads of potatoes, chiefly over the southern route, where frost will not injure them.

One of the principal causes of the present large west-bound shipments of potatoes is the new tariff, which went into effect on Friday last. Rates east-bound on railroad lots have hitherto been higher than the west-bound tariff. The new rates are 90 cents per hundred pounds a carload lot from Sioux City, Missouri river and common points, Mississippi river, St. Louis and common points, and 95 cents from Chicago and common points.

Suicide at Clarke's Station.

Sunday morning an Italian about 20 years of age, who was cooking for Thomas Hill at Clarke's Station, between here and Wadsworth, stepped out of the dining room, while the folks were eating breakfast, and took a double-barrel shotgun, placed the muzzle in his mouth and blew the whole top of his head off.

Those best acquainted with the deceased are unable to understand the cause of self-destruction, as he had shown no signs of insanity. The remains were brought to Reno, where they were buried yesterday afternoon. An inquest held by Coroner Peers found the facts as above stated.

WHAT OF KATH.

Is the reason people will not, can not or do not use any difference in cheap nostrums put up by cheap John Jones or irresponsible parties at someone's profit rather than take a medicine of world-wide reputation and one that is "GIVING UNIVERSAL SATISFACTION" at 10¢ a bottle? No medicine in the world is giving such unparalleled satisfaction for purifying the blood as BLOOD PURIFIER AND BLOOD MAKER. At every bottle that does not do its work will cost you nothing.
